

Toddler Classes

The Toddler children are using mixed drawing materials and adding paint or collage to create their own unique art work. Each material is considered to be its own language. Mixing the materials allows the children to express themselves more articulately.

Preschool Classes

Preschool children continue to work toward visual literacy. In the Art Studio they work independently and cooperatively. The Preschool children mix mediums in the same way that the toddlers do but with greater clarity of purpose. Combining layers of drawing, collage and painting, with the control afforded them by their experience, the Preschool children intentionally represent their thoughts and vision.

School Age Campers

The School Age children enjoy visiting the Art Studio on vacation days. In September they made sculptures using repurposed cardboard parts. Each child made an art work of their own design. Some of the children drew environments for their sculptures too.
